Hardwired for Relationships ~ 2 Corinthians 11:23-28

Two are better than one—we can often short-circuit our ability to withstand pressure and to cope with anxiety and stress when we are not in relationship. We carry burdens we weren't meant to carry because we've created an incomplete form of Christianity. We fight the devil alone when this was not God's intention. Without committed, intentional, loving relationships with other Christians, we are missing an essential ingredient of the faith.

~The Power of Together by Jim Putman

God has not called us to live in isolation as believers. He unites us to Christ and places us within a community of faith where we influence one another in profound ways. Your Walk with God describes Christian community as intentionally intrusive, Christ-centered, grace driven, redemptive relationships.

~Paul David Tripp

Love is being a good student of another, looking for their physical, emotional and spiritual needs so that in some way you can remove the burden, support them as they carry it, or encourage them along the way.

~Paul David Tripp

Sin is most dangerous in isolation, darkness, hiding. Sin seeks to remain private, God wants it exposed and dealt with in the loving fellowship of other believers.

~John MacArthur
